Oriental Poppies

THESE vivid colored flowers are becoming more popular every year. Considering their ease of culture, dependability for producing fine large flowers of white and many shades of orange, pink, and red, their hardiness and ability to thrive in all soils, it is small wonder that people are planting them. We offer a nice list of very distinct colors and we believe you will be pleased with the results you get from our plants. See back of page for complete list.

A Word about our POPPIES....

THE plants we sell are grown from root divisions and are two-year-old field-grown plants. They generally bloom the first year after planting and are very much superior to common seedlings usually sold.

We guarantee them to be true to name and color.

Complete cultural directions are sent with each order. Poppies like a well-drained soil but they are not particular whether it is clay, sandy, limestone or acid. Leaf mold, well-rotted cow manure and bone meal seem to be the best fertilizers.

Poppies in the Garden

These beautiful exotic flowers are a source of pride and satisfaction to all who possess them. Plant some pink varieties such as Fairy, Perfection or Mrs. Perry along with Delphinium and Madonna Lily. Plant some dark red varieties with evergreens or "Mock Orange" or other dark green shrub-berry for a background.

When to Plant Oriental Poppies

We have found August to November to be the best time to transplant Poppies and once they get established the clumps increase in size and produce more blooms. They may be left undisturbed in the same place for years.

Poppies Grow Everywhere

We have shipped these fine plants to Alaska, Hawaii, Mexico, Bermuda, Canada, Newfoundland and practically every state in the United States. We pack them so they will reach you in prime condition and they are well worth trying in your garden.

How to Prepare Oriental Poppies for Bouquets

The newly opened flowers or buds showing color are the ones to cut. Burn the ends of the stems over a fire until charred an inch or two. Place in a deep vase of cold water and keep in a cool dark location for two hours. After this they may be arranged in bouquets and will keep a long time if kept in fresh cool water.
